It's finally here! That's right, this May I will be graduating from Liberty University with a degree in missionary aviation! I thank you all for all your prayers and support throughout the years as I have been working toward this goal. Now it is time for the next step...which is in Africa!

This summer after graduation I have the opportunity to go to Nairobi, Kenya to work with Africa Inland Mission Air on an individual assignment. I have been planning to take this trip for some time. My intent is to really dig deep into the workings of missionary aviation in Africa. God has provided this opportunity through AIM Air to work with them in their aviation headquarters in Nairobi. The exact list of jobs and work I will be doing is unknown, yet I will mostly be working in the hangar using my mechanic skills on inspections and special projects AIM has. I also hope to be involved as much as I can in other ministries, and hopefully flying out to some remote locations working with tribes.

The length of the trip was important to me. I wanted to go for a couple of months. This was to really learn about another culture and the inner workings of missions work overseas that you may not get with a shorter trip. This trip will be about 2 and a half months. I will be leaving June 2 for AIM's U.S. headquarters in New York and will fly out for Kenya on June 4th. My return will be the middle of August.

I am extremely excited about finally going to Africa! For 5 years now I've been training for this work. I trust God for everything I need and am excited to see what He's going to do through me this summer!

Just as I could not have gotten through my college career without your prayers and support, I ask again for your prayers and financial support for this trip. I ask for you to prayerfully consider how you can be a part of my ministry this summer. Please look through the info on the left and I thank you in advance for your support for Africa '08!
